GUARD GETS TASTE OF REAL CAMP LIFE

Glad to See General Wedgwood.

Regimental Non-Commissioned Staff on Inspection.

Inspection occurs each morning at 8 o'clock and is conducted by Colonel Plummer personally. Everything in the tents must be exactly in the position prescribed by the military regulations. During inspection the occupants of the tents stand at attention in front of their quarters. The regimental "non-coms" have the street at the head of the camp.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Camp Leonard Wood, American Fork, Utah, Aug. 28.—A sharp electric storm at camp today gave the National Guard a taste of real campaigning. The storm came up about 9 o'clock in the morning and a heavy rain continuing about an hour resulted. Despite the rain the guard mount occurred as usual, the men going out on the outposts clad in rubber ponchos.

While the storm was in progress a bolt of lightning struck the telephone wires of the signal corps and Lieutenant Manning and Private Christensen of the signal corps were both knocked down by the shock. Christensen was "telephone girl" at the telephone exchange at the camp and Lieutenant Manning was telephoning from the Y. M. C. A. tent. Both recovered a moment after the accident and the signal corps grounded all the wires during the storm, putting the camp temporarily out of communication with the outside.

Battalion Drill Held.

After the rain was over the regular morning battalion drill was held on the wet meadows. The men were put through two hours of hard work maneuvering. The drill was the most satisfactory held yet and did much to stimulate the interest taken in the prize drill contest to be held Friday in competition for the governor's silver cup. The outcome of this contest is doubtful. The competition seems to be chiefly between company H of Salt Lake, company B of Ogden and company F of Mant. The Salt Lake boys have been training hard for the contest and are confident of winning the cup, which will be held by the best drilled company for one year, to be completed for again at each annual encampment.

Company H is the oldest Salt Lake company now in existence and the second oldest in the guard. It was organized Jan. 21, 1901, Captain Freeman Bassett, commanding company H, is the senior line officer in the regiment. This distinction puts company H in the lead in all battalion and regimental maneuvers. Attached to this company are the battery detail and the regimental color squad. F. H. Barnes is first lieutenant of the organization and Elbert D. Thomas second lieutenant.

Company H Active.

In addition to being a military organization, company H also maintains a social club of its members with club rooms at the armory. During the winter the company frequently entertains at hops and smokers in the armory hall and in the company's club rooms. Last spring at the time of the general dissatisfaction in the guard, it seemed that company H would pass out of existence. Six days before the national inspection only eight men appeared for drill. The officers by a special effort succeeded in recruiting the company up to thirty-three men before the inspection by the regular army officer.

Just before coming to camp company H issued a neat little album entitled "Revolution." In this little book are published the pictures of the officers of the National Guard and of company H with a bit of the history of the guard and of the company. In line with this little publication the officers and men of company H are endeavoring to arouse sufficient interest among the other companies to warrant the inauguration of a National Guard magazine to be published monthly by the men. This magazine would be semi-official in its nature, printing the departmental orders of the commander-in-chief and at the same time printing news concerning the various companies of the guard. The plan is to have the publication similar to others issued in the east by the National Guard organizations of the different states.

Governor's Day Friday.

On next Friday, governor's day, hundreds of admirers of the Salt Lake company are coming in the hope of seeing it pronounced the banner company of the guard. The judge of the drill contest has not been chosen yet, but will doubtless be a regular army officer, possibly Lieutenant Santschi, who has just arrived from West Point. The number of men in line, the precision and accuracy of the movements executed, the tone of the commands by the officers, the bearing of the men and many other details will be taken into consideration in awarding the prize cup.

After drill yesterday the enlisted men of company H entertained the colonel and his staff with a burlesque on the retreat parade. Quartermaster Sergeant Dean R. Daynes impersonated Colonel Plummer and Bugler Jack Held cavorted about on an imaginary steed, giving impossible commands, took the part of Regimental Adjutant W. C. Webb. Half a dozen men pounding on kitchen utensils and tooting imaginary horns were the band, while a lone soldier marching behind the band took the part of the entire regiment. The burlesque will be repeated in a more elaborate form on Saturday evening, when the last night in camp will be given over to a vaudeville performance by the enlisted men.

Captain Earl V. Smith, regimental quartermaster, is now in camp, relieving Lieutenant Sorenson, quartermaster for the second battalion, who has been doing the regimental work until the arrival of Cap. Smith.

The baseball game between company C of Nephi and company B of Ogden was won by company C by a score of 11 to 10. The obstacle race, inserted in the sport program in lieu of the siege, which proved too rough, was won by company F, which defeated the band in a close contest.

The tug of war was won by company D, defeating the signal corps. Company H defeated company C in a pick-a-back relay race.
